

ELLIPSE

Submission guidelines

- Translations could be from any language into English or French. They must be previously unpublished.
- Poems must not exceed ten pages. Prose, or other forms of writing should not be more than 2500 words in length. If there is commentary, it should not exceed 500 words.
- Submissions should not contain any formatting elements other than line breaks and indents. If you have any question or would like to integrate visual elements, specific fonts, or other design components, please reach out, beforehand, to editors of the issue at soumissions@ellipsemagazine.com.
- We publish all texts in their original languages alongside their translations. It is the translators' responsibility to obtain written permissions to translate and publish the translation as well as the original text.
- Submissions should also contain short biographies of the author and the translator, to a maximum of 50 words each, included in the same Word document.

We look forward to reading your translations.
